PROFILE

I'm Chris, a visual interface and interaction designer graduated at the Willem de Kooning Academy of arts. I have an innovative approach towards media, design and art and find my inspirations in contemporary and street art, as well as in nature and urban life. Working for various clients and different employees in highly commercial environments, individually and in teams, has made me versatile and allround.

I'm employed at R&D Media in Amsterdam as senior interactive designer and team manager of the creative department, where I'm responsible for the interactive projects and campaigns broadcasted on internet, television and mobiles. We develop casual games, iPhone applications, commercials and such.

Next to that, I am freelancing under the name of Interactivechris. I am a one man full service digital media agency, strongly focussed on concept, design and development. Interactivechris.com also highlights my personal work of printed & digital media, illustrations and paintings.
